President's Message

Dear Readers,

It is with great pride and enthusiasm that I welcome you to this special issue of the Journal of Clinical Orthopaedics (JCOrth), dedicated to WIROC 2024—the Western India Regional Orthopaedic Conference. This annual event of the Bombay Orthopaedic Society is not merely a conference; it is a celebration of knowledge, innovation, and community in the field of orthopaedics.

As we gather from December 20th to 22nd at the Marriott, we embrace this year's theme: Honouring the Legacy, Pioneering the Progress. It serves as a powerful reminder of our dual responsibility—cherishing the foundations laid by the stalwarts of our field while courageously venturing into uncharted territories of research, practice, and education.

This edition of JCOrth represents a fresh chapter with a dynamic new editorial team led by Dr. Sachin Kale as the Chief Editor. Their commitment to fostering scholarly excellence and creating a platform for meaningful discourse is truly commendable. I am confident that their vision will propel the journal to greater heights, becoming an invaluable resource for orthopaedic practitioners, researchers, and learners alike.

WIROC 2024 promises an enriching experience, with a thoughtfully curated program that bridges tradition and innovation. The legacy of excellence upheld by the Bombay Orthopaedic Society shines brightly through this event, which continues to attract some of the brightest minds in orthopaedics from across the globe.

As you explore this special issue, I hope it inspires you to reflect on our shared journey—where we have come from and where we aspire to go. Let this be a call to action, urging us all to contribute meaningfully to the advancement of orthopaedic science and the well-being of our patients.

Thank you for being a part of this vibrant community. Here's to a conference filled with learning, collaboration, and inspiration.

Warm regards,

Dr. Mohan M Desai,
President

Secretary's Message

Dear Readers and Esteemed Members,

As Secretary of the Bombay Orthopaedic Society, it is my privilege to present this issue of our Journal of Clinical Orthopaedics, which has flourished over the years with valuable contributions from both our members and non-members. We are committed to showcasing academic work and advancements in orthopaedics, creating a platform for both budding and experienced surgeons alike to share their findings.

This journal has a rich history, built on the legacy of distinguished leaders like Dr. Nicholas Antao and Dr. Ashok Shyam. Their commitment to excellence and high standards has laid a strong foundation for our publication. As we move forward under the stewardship of Dr. Sachin Kale, our new editor, we strive to honor their legacy while embracing innovation and inclusivity in our editorial practices.

Our journey presents exciting challenges and aspirations. One of our primary goals is to achieve indexing in the Directory of Open Access Journals (DOAJ) and other reputable platforms in a time-bound manner, aiming to accomplish this milestone as we celebrate our 60th year of existence as a society. This enhancement will significantly boost the credibility of our publication and solidify its position within the academic community.

To this end, I would like to emphasize several important initiatives:

Quality and Rigor: We are dedicated to maintaining high standards through a streamlined peer review process that upholds the integrity and scholarly value of our articles.

Diverse Contributions: We encourage all members to submit original research, case studies, and review articles that incorporate existing literature in a manner that is accessible and applicable to daily practice.

Community Engagement: We plan to host workshops and webinars aimed at fostering contributions and discussions around best practices in the field.

Editorial Team Leadership: I would like to extend my heartfelt thanks to Dr. Sachin Kale, Dr. Arvind Vatar, and the entire editorial board, along with the support staff from the Indian Orthopaedic Research Group. Your dedication and hard work are pivotal in minimizing turnaround times from submission to publication while ensuring the highest quality.

Indexing and Registrations: We are currently navigating the necessary steps to register our journal under various regulatory bodies. We pledge to keep our members updated on our progress as we work towards this common goal.

In summary, our collective effort is essential to ensure that our journal becomes a distinguished resource in orthopaedics. I earnestly invite you, our readers, to contribute actively to this publication. Let us work together to create a journal that not only serves our society but also inspires envy among our peers.

I wish Dr. Sachin Kale, Dr. Arvind Vatar, Dr. Dhiraj Sonawane, Dr. Anoop Dhamangaonkar, and the entire publication team the very best in their endeavors to bring forth a publication that we can proudly call our own.

Thank you for your continued support.

Warm regards,

Dr. Ashish Phadnis
